

Paperbark Maple

(Acer griseum)

Delicate leaves and exfoliating bark create year round landscape interest. This well-mannered tree is a good choice for a focal point in the landscape - in a courtyard or beside a walkway or patio.

Compound, trifoliate leaves are dark green above and silvery green below. In the fall, brilliant red, long-lasting foliage sometimes has orange and yellow highlights. Reddish brown outer bark exfoliates in paper-thin curls to reveal the cinnamon-orange bark beneath.

Growth is upright and spreading to a height of 25 feet and spread of 20 feet. Rated hardy to USDA Zone 5.
