New blooming beauties brighten spring

Three blooming beauties headline our short list of new introductions that continue to be available for sale. Announced in our 2017-18 catalog, the two crabapples and a double-flowered redbud are delightful additions to our flowering tree collection. Our containerized Ivory Spear™ Crabapples and Pink Pom Poms Redbud will wow your garden center customers this spring. The bare root Royal Beauty Crabapples can be containerized for fall sales, or be lined out in your fields for future sale.

Royal Beauty Crabapple

A bright cascade of dark pink flowers appears early in the season to herald the arrival of spring. Narrow in youth, this graceful weeper broadens with age to become nearly as wide as tall. Dark purple foliage matures to bronze purple in late summer and offers improved disease resistance. Dark red fruits persist into winter.

IVORY SPEAR™

UPRIGHT CRABAPPLE

Deep pink buds open to white flowers that smother the slender canopy of this uniquely columnar crabapple in springtime. Summer brings a dense column of dark green leaves that stay clean and disease-free throughout the growing season. Cherry-red fruits ripen in bright contrast to the dark foliage, which turns yellow in autumn. Fruits add seasonal interest by continuing to shine into the winter months.

Pink Pom Poms Redbud

Vivid pink, double-petaled flowers are borne in dense clusters along the upright branches of this vigorous and symmetrical tree. They celebrate springtime with their bright display, and are soon followed by heart-shaped glossy green leaves that turn rich yellow in autumn. Dr. Dennis Werner of North Carolina State University developed this unique hybrid by crossing the double-flowered "Flame" Redbud with the heat and drought-resistant Oklahoma Redbud.

Tune in to our New Trees video for photos and details of all of our new introductions. In addition to the flowering trees described above, these continue to be available: Cinnamon Girl™ Maple, Jeronimus Cottonwood and Chestnut Oak. <http://jfs.co/nt18-0202>
