

Plu-What?

Pluots, Pluerries and Apriums, oh my! Unfamiliar fruiting objects (UFO's) have landed on our stock available list! You'll go into orbit when you discover that these UFO's are part of our expanded fruit tree product line. They're in good company with a number of unusual fruit tree cultivars such as the farmer's market favorite, Pink Lady Apple and the giant (in size and flavor) Elephant Heart Plum.

Stellar additions to our fruit tree product line include plum/apricot/cherry/nectarine/peach hybrids that combine the best of stone fruit flavors and character: Each is super-sweet, juicy, delicious and uniquely suited for home orchard culture.

Dapple Dandy Pluot® is sold in stores as "Dinosaur Egg", a name inspired by the large, firm fruits of this interspecific hybrid of plum and apricot. Pink flesh is pink and creamy. This small spreading tree is very productive and is an attractive landscape ornamental, too.

Flavor King Pluot® resembles a classic plum on the outside. Hiding beneath its familiar-looking purple skin is fragrant, red and gold flesh that is firm, juicy and sweet. Fruit ripens late midseason and holds on the tree for as long as two weeks after maturity.

Cot-N-Candy Aprium® presents the best of two species. Bite into the golden orange skin of this hybrid of apricot and plum to discover sweet and juicy white-fleshed fruit. Self-fruitful, it's a good choice for small-space gardens because it does not require a pollinizer.

Sweet Treat Pluerry™ brings the best characteristics of four fruit species to the home garden. This taste test favorite combines the sweetness of a cherry with the summer fresh zing of a plum. With lineage that also includes peach and apricot, it's a super sweet summer treat.

Spice Zee NectaPlum® trees dazzle the eye in spring with a tremendous show of purplish pink blooms. Flowers are soon followed by leaves that emerge red and mature to lush green. Newly-set fruit is dark maroon and turn pale pink as it matures. The flavor of this juicy, white-fleshed hybrid of nectarine, peach and plum is a distinctive, recognizable combination of each of these popular fruits.
